the world. Without the least fear of tumbling their dress, they were rolling in the snow, laughing and romping. Our audden arrival putthen to flight, and sent them screaming behind a hedge, whence, to punish us for our immoderate laughter, they pelied us with snow-balls and himps office till we could hardly see out of our eyes, and their bashfulness would consequently have been spared our gaze, had not the horses—which, although perfectly innocent, came is for a share of the punishment, relused to advance. Fortunstely, the second sledge, with the ladies,—who had been airaid to drive so fast as we did—was still telerably far behind; so we made a show of dismounting, to drive the enemy from their entrenchments. No sooner, however, had they discovered our object, than, after delivering one last volley, they took to precipitate flight, and crept into an adjacent oven with the sgilty of marmots: only the youngest, a little thing shout fiftee years of sge, remained behind, hastily gathering up the clothes, and, as it seemed, quite upon the siert, so as, in case of further pursuit, to throw them to her companions. The approach of the second sledge put an end to the adventure; we jumped into ours, made as though we had seen nothing, and soon pulled up in front of our friend's country house.

A servant received us, and ushered us into a room, hested to an agreeable temperature, where a alining-table seemed on the point of breaking down under the load of catables, among which were a rich supply of fish pies and mean tipes, while a bright brase sawoear smoked cheerfully on the board. Neither the ladies nor ourselves had felt the cold in the least, but the drive had nevertheless given us famous appetites. German formality was soon laid aside, and all helped themselves, in selves had selt the cold in the least, but the drive had nevertheless given us famous appetites. German formality was soon laid aside, and all helped themselves, in true Russian style, without constraint, and without waiting to be pressed, to the brandy, beer, quass, kishischi, wine, tes, pies, white and black bread, ham, cheese, roast mest, sausages, and all the other things which the really exaggerated hospitality of Russia had there collected together; and thus did a short hoar pass away, during which the mouth's activity was devoted to other purposes than to a regular conversation. When the urgent cravings of the stomach were satisfied, the company went to walk in an adjacent wood; I remained behind, to indulge my passion for observation, and to look about me a little in the village, and in the houses of its inhabitants. First of all I examined the exterior of the cottage oc-about see a little in the village, and in the houses of its inhabitants.

First of all I examined the exterior of the cottage occupied by the farmer from whom my friend rented his country house. It stood close to the latter, and, like it, was composed entirely of massive beams. The small panes of glass in the windows did not permit a view of the interior of the habitation, so covered were they withdirt. To reach the stables, I had to cross a tolerably spacious court, strewed with all sorts of broken and disjointed fragments of carts and farming implements. A handsome, roomy, three-stall stable and a coach-house were empty. They belonged to my friend's house. On the other hand, in a sort of closet, large and lofty enough at most for half a dozen sheep, I found a little horse, exarcely bigger than a one-year-old calf, whose condition was strictly in propertion to his growth, and who seemed striving to prolong his wretched existence by chewing the scarty blades of straw which he was all to pick out of the bed of dung on which he stood. I then visited the barn, and found it full of straw. Although it still wanted several weeks to Christmas, there was no corn left in the ear. On examining the straw I observed that it was extremely well threshed out—better then I ever saw it on a German farm. It was more bruised and broken up than our straw usually is, but not a grain romained in the ears. The farmer showed me the reason of this, by taking me to the threshing floor. This was an open space, composed, as I discovered—after we had with considerable labor shoveled away the snow which lay some feet deep over it—of clay beaten and stamped to a hard surface. Close by was a sort of stove, and over this a flat place, covered by a roof, where the wheat is dried immediately after the harvest, and then at once threshed out. My guide explained to me the two fold advantage of this arrangement, which enables a needy man at once to realize the value of his crap, and so to meet the debts contracted during thesummer, and to lay in som ment the debts contracted during the summer, and to lay in some sort of stores against winter: moreover, the grain comes more easily and thoroughly out of the dried straw, and the mice's portion is economised by threshing it as soon as got in. These advantages were evident enough; but whether the straw thus dried does not lose some of its value as fodder, I was infined to dould, and I was no longer at a loss to comprehend the meager condition of the calif-like horse. I was now shown the store, which was constructed in the same way as ours in Germany; and when I spoke of the other store or oven in which our snow-balling friends had taken refuge, I was informed that it was a bath-room! This discovery greatly excited my curlosity. I found nothing, however, is a great cumpty place, similar to our baking owns, with a hearth, upon whose flags, when glowing with heat, cold water is poured, whereby such a stean is generated as certainly fully justifies the name of "vapor bath." I determined to investigate this curious arrangement more closely on my return to St. Peter-burg, and now went to rist the interior of the farm house.

On opening the door, we were met by such a steam and emoke, that I thought I was entering a vapor bath in my turn. I could distinguish nothing. At the vary first step, I put my foot upon a living creature, and the squealing that cansued warned me that I had discourteously interfered with the comfort of a pig. Anxious to repair my blunder, I threw myself hastily on my other leg, and stamped upon a child, whose violent acreams so far leasned my alarm that they convinced me I had not rodden it to death. I staggered back in consternation, tumbled over a cut and two dors, who were classing sech other in my immediate vicinity, and dew backward through the door. The farmer broke my fall, or I should have come down upon the snow with greater violence than I did, and perhaps have crushed some chickens and rabits, or a few more children. While i picked myself up, and, with the farmer's help, brach of the s

"THE ACADEMY VOCALIST," by GEORGE M. Roor. (Newman & Ivison.) The elementary extreises and lessons of this little work are by Lowell kasen, which with the greater portion of those "whom it may concern" is the best recommendation tat can be given. The selection of songs, &c., seems us remarkably well made, and we recognize many sid favorites both English and German. The Senior Democratic General Committee did not have a meeting, as was expected, last evening, in consequence of the illness of the Chair man, Augustus Schell, Esq., who has not yet recovered from the severe injuries which were inflicted upon him in the riot the other night by a gang of hirelings employed to break into the Committee-room, and to personally assault the large majority of that body.

The Young Men's Democratic General Committee met, Hon. John Wheeler, the Chairman, presiding. After the preliminary business had been disposed o and the Committee balanced its accounts for the year, a resolution was offered in which the action of the General Committee, in reference to the appointment of Inspectors, was somewhat called in question. A spirited debate occurred, after which the whole sub ject was laid upon the table, thereby virtually endors ing the action of the majority of the General Committee, which will probably appoint the Inspectors, as they did on the 5th of August last.

The Committee then adjourned, after passing a unanimous vote of thanks to their Chairman, Hon. John Wheeler, for the able and impartial manner in which he had presided during the past year.

THE FAIR IN AID OF THE SHIRT-SEWERS .-The attendance was even larger than ever last even ing, and, in consequence of the liberal donations con tinually received from the friends of the Seamstress the Committee have concluded to hold their Fair through to-day, and to dispose of their stock by auction in the evening. In this they will be aided by the continued liberality of the lessee of Metropolitan Hall, Mr. Harding. During the evening Hood's pathetic songs of "The Shirt" and "The Bridge of Sighs" were eloquently recited by Prof. Hows, after which Mr. Greeley made a few remarks, urging upon working-men the duty and necessity of aiding and patronizing such Unions. The friends of the Seamstress who have not visited the Fair should embrace this day and even ing to visit it. No better murt offers in the City in which to purchase holiday presents, as the Fair abounds in every variety of Books, Toys, Fancy Articles, etc. Give them generous countenance at parting.

Our neighbor of The Home Journal has a correspondent who seeks gratuitously to enlighten the world with the names of the authors of certain quotations which happen to be running around without the knowledge of their parents. He says: "There are some men, and women, too, who frequently display their learning at our expense, by quoting certain lines in common use, and rejoicing in our ignorance of their authorship." And straightway he tells us that the exlying." is from a play by Nathaniel Lee called "The Princess of Cleves." The exclamation is aptly verified in this wiseaere of The Home Journal, as the friends of Jack Falstaff and the readers of Shakspore's Henry IV.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS .- A man named Collins, in the employ of Mr. Marsh at Elizabethport, while attempting to get upon the train of the Central Road ent of Kellogg's Mills, was thrown under the cars and instantly killed.

A man was accidentally killed on Wednesday night while walking on the track between Elizabethtown and the toll-gate, by the engine of the Philadelphia train. It appeared that the man had come from New-York in the 5 P. M. train, intending to have stopped at Newark. Not getting out of the train at the latter place, he insisted on being let out of the cars on his way to Elizabethtown, which was allowed, though he was urged to go on. The train being stopped, the man got out and walked back on the track to Newark, and the Philadelphia train coming on about half an hour afterward in the dark, not seeing him, run him down and instantly killed him. The deceased had a Temperance Piedz of the "Old Brewery" in his pocket, and also a book of cake receipts. It is presumed he was a baker. The name in the pledge was Daniel Stevens, and he appeared to be from 35 to 38 years of age.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT ON THE HARLEM RAIL-ROAD-THREE MEN INJURED .- About 5} o'clock last evening, an accident of a very serious nature occurred on the Harlem Railroad at Forty-second-st., in consequence of which three men, named Michael Connelly, Edward Morrison and Michael Cavan, in the employ the Company, were terribly injured. It appears that Connelly and Morrison were engaged in spiking down rails on the side track, on which no cars were then expected, and, as is said, had no business, when an up train unexpectedly came upon them. They ware caught by the cow-catcher attached to the locomotive, tossed in the sir, and fell with great violence among a pile of rubbish some twelve feet from where the were standing. Councily had one leg badly fractured, and sustained other cuts and bruises of a serious char acter. Morrison received a compound fracture of the right arm above the elbow, the bones of which are so much shattered that amputation, it is thought, will be

After this accident the engineer discovered that he was on the wrong track, and immediately used every effort to stop the progress of the train, but before could do so effectually the locomotive came in collision with three cars standing on the track a short distance shead. In the last of these cars Cavan was at work and was thrown from his position with so much vio lence that he received a severe scalp wound, and it is feared concussion of the brain will ensue. All the injured men were placed in a carriage and conveyed to the New-York Hospital, where they remain in a critical condition. The accident is attributed to the negligence or carelessness of the switch-tender, who, it is said, last night had failed to turn the switch so that the cars might have kept on the right track. Such, however, may not be the case; but it seems if each attaché of the Road had done his duty the accident might have been

ACCIDENT ON BOARD A FERRY-BOAT .- About 94 o'clock yesterday morning the Fulton ferry-boat Gowanus while about to enter her dock on the New-York side, in consequence of the force of the tide ran with great violence against the pier, and on recoiling struck the boat Union, then about leaving the dock The collision was so severe that it started the Iron staple to which the chain is hooked which fastens the boat to the bridge, and it flow a distance of several feet, striking Gen. Wade, of Wilmington, N. C., upon the head, inflicting a large scalp wound upon the base of the skull, and cutting off a portion of his right ear. This gentleman was standing, at the time, about the center of the boat. After receiving the injuries he became faint, and was conducted by Officer O'Brien, of the Second Ward, to the drug store corner of Fulton and Water-sts., where medical aid was procured, and the General was afterward removed to the United States Hotel, where he has been boarding for some time past.

MYSTERIOUS-SUPPOSED MURDER OF A CHILD. -On Wednesday last an aged man died at No. 42 West Thirteenth-st., and his brother sent to the establishment of Mr. Benedict, undertaker, in Carmine-st., for a coffin, which was sent to the house yesterday morning. Upon attempting to remove the lid, it was found to be tightly screwed down, and when opened, the coffin was found to contain the body of a female infant, packed up in straw. Its face was discolored, and it bore the marks of having been strangled. Officer Miller, of the Fifteenth Ward Police, who resides near the place, informed the Coroner of the circumstance, and he imme distely took measures to hold an inquest upon the body. The brother of the decessed man called upon the undertaker, and also upon the young man who delivered the coffin, but both deny knowing anything about the body of the child, or in what manner it came to be inclosed in the coffin. Further developments may transpire upon the inquisition before the Coroner, which will take place this morning.

CHARGE OF ROBBERY .- Desperate Assault .-A man named Thomas Doyle, while passing through Center-st. on Wednesday evening, was accosted by two men named John Devine and Thomas Hays, who pretended to recognize in him an old acquaintance and ship-mate. They stated that they were first and second mates of a vessel then lying in one of the North River docks. Doyle replied to their remarks that he was cook on board a vessel himself. He was then invited by his new associates to take a drink, and entered a porterhouse for that purpose. Doyle wishing to return compliment, asked them to drink with him, and at none for that purpose. Boyle whinhy to retain the compliment, asked them to drink with him, and at the same time incautiously exposed to their view a considerable sum of money. After being refreshed they induced Doyle to go with them, ssying that, if he would go to their vessel, profitable employment could be obtained. The whole party then started through Canal-st. to the corner of West and Watts-sta, where they entered a wood-yard. Here Doyle was unceremoniously selzed by the throat by Devine while Hays heat him in the face with a brick in the most brutal and flendish manner, and at the same time made a determinal effort to rob him of his pocket-book. Doyle criced lastily for assistance, which alarmed the villains, who fled, carrying with them Doyle's pocket-book and handkerchief as a reward for their brutality. Officers Westerfield and Smith, of the Ninth Ward Police, hearing the alarm raised by Doyle, and seaing the ruffians on the run, gave chase, overtook and arrested Hays and Devine. The above facts are reported to the Chief of Police by Assistant Captain Setting, of the Ninth Ward Police. The accused parties were taken before Justice Stuart, and committed to prison for trial.

The side wall is bedly cracked and much segged, and the bricks and mortar of which it is composed, are daily falling to the ground. Mr. Murray, foreman of the Engine Co., a short time since called the attention of the Fire Warden of the District to the mat-ter, who stated that he would greak with the Mayor on ter, who stated that he would speak with the Mayor on the subject. This appears to be all that has been done thus far, but it is to be hoped that before long the build-ing will either be taken down or repaired.

DEATH BY VIOLENCE .- The Coroner yesterdsy held an inquest at the New York Hospital, upon the body of Thos. Fine.-About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon alarm of fire was raised in the first district occa-sioned by a dense smoke issuing from the basement of a coffee-reasting establishment at the junction of Fulton and Main-sts. #### NEW-JERSEY ITEMS.

POLICE ANNUAL EXCURSION .- On Wednesday the Police of the Second District of Brooklyn visited Jersey City on their Second Annual Target Excursion. They numbered 47 men, and were commanded by Capt. Thomas King : 1st Lieut., Assistant Capt. Fulton ; 2d Lieut., Sergeant McDonald. The day was beautiful. They had a fine time-nothing occurring to render the occasion unpleasant. On arriving at Jersey City, they marched to the residence of Mayor Manners, in order to psy their compliments to him in behalf of the city. They then proceeded to the "Thatched Cottage," and thence marched up Grand-st. toward Bergen Hill to a place selected for the shooting at the target, for the 28 prizes which had been presented to them. In the course of two hours the Company returned to the Thatched Cottage, where an excellent dinner had been prepared for them. To this the Company sat down with their invited guests, among whom were the Chief of Police, John S. Folk, Esq., ex-Ald. Leech, Dr. Badeau, several members of the Press, and others. The dinner over the Company were drawn up in the yard, in a hollow square, when the following sentiments were proposed:

were proposed:

The People—The objects of our care by day, and our watchfulness by night—we are of them and for Music by the Band. Jersey City-Its peacefulness and prosperity are evidences of the discretion and efficiency of its author-

This was responded to by Jacob Weart, Esq., in a neat and brief speech, welcoming them to Jersey City on their annual excursion, remarking upon the rapidly increasing prosperity of Jersey City, and referring also to the great increase of Brooklyn in size, wealth and population.

Music and cheers.

Our Chief of Police—One of the worthiest of Folks, a faithful leader in duty—the "Knights of Malta", are ever ready to follow him in night-errantry.

Received with loud cheers.

The Ladies—Fair objects of our solicitude, we are always happy to be their protectors, and their guiding "Stars."

Sergeant McDonald, of the Police, responded in a few appropriate remarks, which being respectful to the ledies were humorous to the company. [Cheers.]

The Press—Its office like that of the Police is to protect the rights and iberties of the public. When faithful in its record and just in its comments, it is a powerful instrument for public benefit.

A member of the Press present responded briefly. In the course of the remarks made to the above, the duty performed by the Police was referred to. Men in health, most of them in the prime of life are performing Police duty, day and night, for a very moderate recompense, it will be found by investigation that in the Second Police District of Brooklyn, (2d and 5th Wards,) there are about 15 men at one time, on the average on duty, and that they average each, about $150,000 in property, and over 2,000 lives in their official care and responsibility. They incur dangers in the discharge of their duties; they contribute much to the general comfort, security and happiness of society by their watchfulness; they prevent evil preserve the peace, aid in causing an observance of the laws, and otherwise perform services of importance to the interests of property and comfort of the citizens. For this they receive a recompense none too liberal. Their office is one which not only requires the public confidence and respect, but as a general rule deserves it, yet men in authority make general charges against the department unworthy of them, and thus weaken the executors of the law, and perhaps, prevent, somewhat the good they might do. Men who make charges should be specific, and if found traducing the Police for fashion's sake, it would be but just to sentence them to the ordinary service of the Police, day and night, for one month's time. All the expenses of the Police are collected, spread out, and held up to the public with a request for audible public groans for the extravagance, but nothing is said of the thousands of dollars which are recovered and collected from those arrested by the Police for the violation of the daws and ordinances. It is income from the department, that is thus poured into the city treasury, yet it is not credited to the care and watchfulness of the Police department ! A disturbance occurs, the quick approach of the police is heard, the combatants stander says, ' That's always the way-the police never come till the fight is all over !" and perhaps the papers come out with a full account of the affair, with all the blows and blood, and a closing query : " Where were the police?" After some further remarks, the company again formed and marched to the ferry, DEBATING SOCIETY .- The Union Literary Association organized on Wednesday night in Washington Hall by the appointment of A. A. Hardingburg as President, and L. Ferrin as Secretary. The constitution, by laws and rules of order were adopted, and the necessary committees appointed, after which the meeting adjourned to meet at the same place one week from Friday.

TEMPERANCE.-The petition, signed by a large number of the citizens of Jersey City, praying the Mayor to cause the unlicensed liquor shops to be closed on Sunday, has been sent to the Common Council, and there considered and referred to the Committee on Laws and Ordinances, with directions to frame a law which in its operations will suppress the evil complain-

NEW CHURCH.—The proprietor of Well-wood's Hall has permitted the Germans of Jersey City to hold meetings there on Sunday free of expense. From statistics in possession of the Pastor Rev. Mr. Santer of Newark it appears there are more than two hundred German families in this city who have hitherto been deprived of religious advantages. This enterprise receives the favorable consideration of respectable citizens and an effort is being made to furnish them with a permanent Pastor.

NEW-YORK AND ERIE RAILROAD.-Mr. Field-NEW-YORK AND ERIE KAILROAD.—Mr. Fielder of Jersey City, completed his contract on the last day of November. He has last five miles of track for the New York and Erie Railroad Co., and two and a half for the New York Railroad Transportation Co. The track is double, and made by adding one line of railway to each track, thus enabling the New York and Erie cars to run upon the same road, one wheel being being upon the New Jersey track and the other on its own. This arrangement was made necessary in consequence of the New York and Erie cars being one foot wider than the Jersey cars. The road will be open on or about the first of May next.

COMMON COUNCIL.-The Common Council COMMON COUNCIL.—The Common Council met on Tuesday evening at the Common Council Chamber and approved the minutes of the preceding meeting.

Remonstrances against assessments, petitions for appointment to the office of Watchman, in the First, Second, Third and Fourth Wards, and for the abstement of a nuisance on Montgomery near Bright-st., were disposed of.

An hour was consumed in discussing a report of the Committee on Watch, relative to the expulsion from the Watch Department of William Eagen, alleged by several witnesses to have been found intoxicated on his beat. The subject was finally disposed of by a concurrence in the recommen dation of the Committee, viz: his suspension until the 19th of December.

of December.

Several communications remonstrating against Sewer nuisances were considered and resolutions passed for their plication.

A communication from citizens of the Fourth Ward, relative to the reclamation of certain lands claimed by Mr. Cole or his heirs, was followed up with action in accordance with the request of communicants.

A veto Message was received from the Mayor with reference to acts of the Common Council in purchasing lots on which to erect Engine-houses, in which he asserts they repudiate their own resolutions.

latter, and left at the People's Bank, Paterson, for discount, but not discounted, it is alleged: and subsequently got into the hands of Messra. Robbins, who are been credited by the bank to T. M. & Co., and that Messra. R. & Son received it for value.

The Court considered that Messra. R. & Son at any rate were innocent holders, and ordered a verdict for defendants.

Before Judge Parne.

Benjamin M. Yartington, and Mary K., his wife, agt. New-liaven Raliroad Company.

To recover damages for injury during a collision of cars, already referred to. The Court, in relation to the point of defense that the company have rules which, if attended to by those in their employment, will prevent collision; that they employ careful conductors, but that the conductor in this case left the Portchester Station much scomer than he should have done, and knowingly and wilfully did so, &c., charged that the company is liable for the acts of its servants, unless there is an actual intention on the part of the servant, or conductor, to cause a collision. Mere infringement of orders will not pretect the company. In regard to damages, the pleadings in this case do not claim specially for the expense Mr. Yarrington has been at in physicians' bills or loss of service of his wife, but simply claim damages for the injury she received, and the Jury are confined to that. It does not appear to be a case calling for exemplary damages—that is, damages as a punishment, but the Jury are bound to award Mrs. Yarrington what will be just in consideration of the injury she has already experienced and may experience hercafter. (It is said she has been permanently, in a degree, injured.) Scaled verdict this forence.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS—Before the Ra-coader and Ald. Tweed and Haley.

weiter at the Irving House, was tried on an indictment charging him with having stolen a gold watch and chain, valued at $100, the property of Mr. Wm. B. Miller, a rensended to await sentence. The Court then adjourned for the day.
